Mao's Last Dancer

*Running time: 117 Minutes English and Mandarin with English subtitles

Director Bruce Beresford tells the inspiring true story of Li Cunxin. Born in 1961, Li lived with his six brothers and impoverished parents in China's Shandong Province.

When recruiters from Madame Mao's ballet academy in Beijing sweep through, eleven-year-old Li is selected, and a strange new life of stringent training begins.

Discovered by the Houston Ballet, Li becomes one of the first exchange students allowed to go to America. Li's refusal to return to China leads to a standoff that makes headlines across America.

The Old Station

Monday November 22, 2010, 7:00 p.m.

Soul Kitchen

*Running time: 99 Minutes German with English subtitles

Soul Kitchen is a madcap, Marx Brothers-style comedy that audiences will savour.

Zinos Kazantzakis (Adam Bousdoukos, Head-On) is the proprietor of Soul Kitchen, a vast warehouse diner restaurant in a scruffy neighborhood of Hamburg where the food is spectacularly bad.

Then after a particularly bad run he goes looking for the city's biggest rock-star chef (the ferocious Birol Ünel from Head-On) in a bid to save his restaurant and shake things up. And shake things up he does.
