Barney's Version

*Running time: 132 minutes

Barney Panofsky (in a brilliant performance by Paul Giamatti, The Last Station, Sideways), smokes too much, drinks too much, and falls in love too much. A 67-year old television producer with three marriages under his belt, his past is rife with mistakes and regrets.

When a former acquaintance threatens to reveal an assortment of his past sins, he decides to present the world with his own version of events. What follows is a desperately funny and poignant telling of a highly flawed character's life story.

Based on the international bestseller by Mordecai Richler.

My Afternoons with Margueritte

*Running time: 82 minutes / French with English subtitles

The touching story of an unlikely friendship struck up between a hulking, middle-aged odd-jobber (G rard Depardieu) and a sweetly articulate retired international civil servant (Gis le Casadesus). What begins in this gentle comedy as an acquaintanceship on a park bench in a small French town blooms into a shared appreciation of literature, and for Depardieu's character, a salve that begins to heal a lifetime of sorrow and ridicule. And as this new world is opened to him, a ripple effect takes hold as he in turn enriches the lives of those around him.

Directed by Jean Becker.
